Julie Loosigian, 4, and her brother, Thomas, 6, the children of Peter and Lisa Loosigian of Pelham, N.H., and grandchildren of Peter and Alice Loosigian of 254 Lowell St., play among the pumpkins at Strawberry Hill Farm, which the grandparents own. Peter and Lisa Loosigian, son and daughter-in-law of the farm-owners, both work at the Strawberry Hill Farm. Lisa reports that this year's crop of pumpkins is ready for Halloween. Halloween falls on a Sunday this year, Oct. 31. The selectmen will decide at their next meeting, Monday, Oct. 4, which day trick-or-treating will be in Andover. Selectmen will ask for police input before making the decision.

Tracking, mainstreaming, leveling: Good ideas or not?

By Neil Fater

When School Committee member Dick Muller questioned the meshing of different level students in high school science classes at the last committee meeting, he delved into a collection of complex issues that educators have been dealing with for years. Among those issues are leveling, mainstreaming, inclusion, and tracking, all of which have long been state-wide and national dilemmas.

The committee plans to discuss mainstreaming and inclusion at its Oct. 5 meeting, but the discussion will also involve leveling and tracking.

Mainstreaming specifically refers to a state-mandated law that requires schools to include learning-disabled students in courses with their fellow classmates as much as possible. Leveling has been used and has undergone slight alterations in the Andover school system for years. Nationally, tracking has been criticized as a racist system that can place students based upon socioeco-

Board avoids action on 2 alcohol licenses

By Don Staruk

Selectmen Monday night managed to avoid having to take any action related to two alcohol-license transfers that have run into problems with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. Instead, all parties involved seemed to have resolved their disputes on their own.

Michael Manzi, of Lawrence, attorney for Stewart Anderson Jr. of 3 Wolcott Ave., told board members that Mr. Anderson had worked out a compromise with Richard Pruneau regarding the transfer of the alcohol license for the former Andover Grill at 40 Park St. The entire row of buildings where the Grill is located, called Lanes End after former owner Georgina Lane, of 13 Bartlet St., was foreclosed on last year. The buildings were purchased at auction by

Collins Center lies idle on 10th anniversary

By Neil Fater

It opened far better than anyone had ever anticipated, to a packed house, with tears of joy from J. Everett Collins and applause for all involved in the undertaking. Andover High School's auditorium had turned into the Collins Center, a cultural mecca for the immediate region and the town, and the world-famous Boston Pops

Esplanade orchestra turned out in style.

Today, 10 years after its opening, the center is shrouded in clouds concerning its future. It stands virtually unused, without a full-time staff and below the expectations its euphoric opening brought. Today, the town turns out only for meetings and the occasional show.

Selectmen likely to call Special Town Meeting

By Don Staruk

Selectmen next Monday night will likely call for a Special Town Meeting to be held Monday, Nov. 8, to appropriate $820,000 in state aid, most of which is education aid.

The vote was discussed briefly and scheduled for next week by the board during its meeting Monday, Sept. 27.

Last year the town received $492,200 in Per Pupil Education aid, but because that aid was in the form of a grant, its appropriation did not require town meeting approval. This year the town will receive the $492,000 plus an additional $264,108 in "New Education Aid," all of which falls under Chapter 70 education aid. But according to the new Education Reform laws, a special town meeting is now required to appropriate all the Chapter 70

Local author writes about his son's anorexia nervosa

By Neil Fater

John Gould, an author and professor at Phillips Academy, had long dreamed of visiting England. So when he boarded a plane to spend a year on sabbatical in London with his family, his mind was on strolling the streets described by Dickens, and traveling the countryside of the Brontës' childhood. Ten weeks later he returned home, his mind on something else - saving his son's life.

From almost the moment he arrived in Woodstock, England, John and Jane Goulds' eldest son, Gardner, had difficulty adjusting. Discomfort with his environment led to an eating disorder that stole vast amounts

Cheryl Henderson is the Townsman's newest ad rep

Last week new Townsman employees reporter Neil Fater and photographer Lisa Adelsberger were profiled. This week, the paper features advertising representative Cheryl Henderson.

Cheryl Henderson

Cheryl Henderson, of 133 Andover St., has been working at the Townsman since the end of June as an advertising representative.

Her territory is the southern New Hampshire area.

A June 1993 graduate of Northeastern University in Boston, Ms. Henderson majored in business administration and marketing.

She also attended Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill, where she earned an associates degree in business in August of 1991.

"This is the field I wanted to be in," said Ms. Henderson, who also attended Massachusetts College of Pharmacy & Applied Health Sciences.

She worked at The Boston Globe from March to June in 1992 as a display advertising assistant. In that position she assisted salespeople with their accounts.

She has also worked in the real estate field. She was a real estate agent from 1991 to 1993 with Russell and Associates Realty Inc. in Boston, where her duties included renting apartments, telemarketing and performing some advertising duties.

Ms. Henderson also worked for some time at CVS as a shift supervisor in the Andover and the Danvers pharmacies.

She is interested in cross country skiing, volleyball and computers.

Correction and clarification

The area location of the Cuba Street playground was incorrectly named in last week's Townsman, in a story on page 24. The Cuba Street playground, refurbished with help from the Andover Quota Club, which raised $3,000 to purchase five pieces of playground equipment, is not in Ballardvale.

Clarification

The name of one Andover High School junior varsity volleyball player, Ann Marie Paone, was omitted from the outline of the color photo on page 1 of last week's Townsman.

NEWS DEADLINE at the Andover Townsman is Monday at 5 p.m. for all news with the exception of school news, which is due Friday at 5 p.m. Please include a name and phone number, in case there are questions.

Train-whistle hearing rescheduled

The continued public hearing on the blowing of train whistles in Andover has been postponed until Thursday, Oct. 21, at 10 a.m. in the offices of the Department of Public Utilities, 100 Cambridge St., Boston.

The meeting had been scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 29, but was postponed at the request of the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority, according to Tony Torrisi, Andover's budget and finance director.

Town officials have been getting complaints since last fall when approximately 200 residents signed a petition in support of quieting the whistles. The complaints are that the whistles are being blown louder and more frequently than was past practice.

Selectmen petitioned the DPU for complete elimination of the whistle blowing. Residents had the opportunity to sound their views locally on the issue during the opening of the DPU hearing at Memorial Hall Library on July 21. At the evidential hearing Oct. 21, both sides will present evidence for their arguments. The DPU will then consider the evidence and make a ruling.

Hazardous waste collection set for October

Andover will hold a hazardous-waste collection next month, the first such collection in town in three years. The collection is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 23.

Residents will have the opportunity to get rid of paints, oil, antifreeze, pesticides and other hazardous materials that have been cluttering their garages and basements since 1990, the last time the town funded a hazardous waste collection.

Collections were held for five years, from 1985 through 1990, three which were held jointly with North Andover. The cost ranged from $5,000 for the first collection to $30,000 for the last one. Since then, no funding has been available for a collection.

At April Town Meeting this year, voters approved $20,000 in the Health Department budget for a hazardous-waste collection. The Board of Health awarded a contract to General Chemical of Framingham for $15,930.

The collection will be a one-day event, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at West Elementary School.

"It's an opportunity for residents to bring in all kinds of hazardous material that they shouldn't be putting in the waste disposal stream," said Everett Penney, Andover's health director.

Paint and motor oil are big items for the collections. Other items commonly brought in include pesticides, furniture polish, paint strippers, solvents, aerosols and all kinds of batteries, from flashlight batteries to car batteries.

Explosives will not be accepted.

Fire department plans Oct. 9 open house

The Andover Fire Department will conduct an open house Saturday, Oct. 9, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Many exhibits will be on display along with the fire apparatus. A Jaw's of Life demonstration will be held in front of the central fire station at noon. A semi-automatic external defibrillator will also be

In the photo with Rep. Meehan are two employees whose jobs were saved by the effort: Pam Nichols of 11 Starwood Crossing, a program manager; and Ray Mann, center, of Lowell, program analyst. Congressman Moakley visited the site Friday, too. The two congressmen announced the continuation of a Department of Defense maintenance contract, which resulted in preserving 200 jobs at Dynamics Research.

Leave compost site opens Oct. 21

The town's leaf composting site on Bald Hill will open for the season on Thursday, Oct. 21.

Residents can dump leaves, grass clippings and shredded yard waste at the site, according to Dennis Sheehan, administrative assistant at the Department of Public Works. Tree branches and limbs are not allowed to be dumped at the site and Mr. Sheehan said residents who have tree limbs to get rid of will have to call a private disposal company.

The composting facility will be open 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday each week through Saturday, Dec. 4.

Commission tours former Marland Mills site

By Don Staruk

After a tour of the former Marland Mills buildings off Stevens Street last week, Historical Commission Chairman John S. Sullivan said this week he may be inclined to allow a developer to go ahead with plans to demolish two of the buildings with certain conditions.

Mr. Sullivan stressed that members of the commission have not reached any consensus on the demolition applications for two buildings on the site, and that individual members have different opinions about what should happen at the site.

A public hearing on the demolition applications was closed earlier this month, and the board will vote at its next meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 12, at town offices, whether the structures should be "preferably preserved," which could delay their demolition for up to six months.

As was discussed during the public hearing, board members may vote that the buildings be preferably preserved to leverage concessions from the developer regarding the preservation and restoration of the remaining buildings on the site, Mr. Sullivan said.

The developer, Bertram Paley, said during the public hearing that his intention is to restore as much of the buildings as possible, including the bell tower with the bell.

Mr. Paley has plans to demolish the building on the east side of the river, where Suburban Health Care is now, and construct a 45,000-square foot supermarket on that site. He would also demolish the section of the building on the west side of the river that is closest to the river, including the former boiler room and smokestack, move Suburban Health Care into the front of that building and construct 100 assisted-living apartments for elders in the back of the building.

'The whole scheme of it is to have an arrangement that is similar in concept to the Tyer Rubber building (now Andover Commons) with big open windows.'

Mr. Sullivan said one of his concerns, and that of other board members, is that the restoration of the remaining buildings is assured before the demolitions take place. He said members would seek that covenants to that effect be included as conditions in any demolition approvals.

"The building that is tacked on to the rear end of the Suburban Health Care clinic obviously has a lot of problems with it," Mr. Sullivan said.

The roof is falling in, the floors are rotting and there are problems with the walls, and it would take a lot of work and money to restore the structure, Mr. Sullivan said, and he knows that is not in the developer's plans. Despite the problems, Mr. Sullivan said some members still favor restoration of that building and will likely discuss that option at the Oct. 12 meeting.

"Some members, I think, want to think that through. Some members are not convinced that building should be demolished," he said.

The building scheduled for demolition on the west side of the river has been renovated and could be used as office space, Mr. Sullivan said, and he is less inclined to see that demolished.

"My own view is it's lamentable they have to take down that building," Mr. Sullivan said.

The developers propose to demolish the structure to provide an access road to the rear of the remaining building, where the 100 assisted-living apartments would be. Demolition would also open up the view to the river for the tenants of those apartments.

"The whole scheme of it is to have an arrangement that is similar in concept to the Tyer Rubber building (now Andover Commons) with big open windows," Mr. Sullivan said.

Both buildings have already been recognized by the commission as historically significant, but Mr. Sullivan said, "They're not ancient." They were built some time after 1848, Mr. Sullivan said.

Construction on the Marland Mills site could begin next year, according to Stephen Colyer, town planning director.

Selectmen to call Special Town Meeting

education aid, according to Tony Torrisi, town budget and finance director.

According to the law, the appropriation doesn't have to be made prior to the tax rate being set in December, so a Special Town Meeting is not mandatory. And the schools could operate on an assumption that the money will be appropriated in a certain category come the regular Town Meeting in April. But that's a very risky business proposition, according to Mr. Torrisi.

It would be "dangerous" to delay the appropriation until April, when there would be less than three months left in the fiscal year, not enough time to make any significant financial changes, Mr. Torrisi said.

After hearing Mr. Torrisi's recommendations two weeks ago, and following joint discussions with the chairpersons of the School and Finance committees, Bill Downs, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said Monday night he felt the consensus was in favor of the Special Town Meeting and he scheduled the vote for the selectmen's Oct. 4 meeting.

Schedule

If, as expected, the vote Monday night calls for a Special Town Meeting, the warrant would be opened the same night. The warrant would close on Thursday, Oct. 14, and the board would sign it Monday, Oct. 18.

The warrant would be published in the Townsmen on Oct. 21, the Finance Committee's report would be mailed on Monday, Nov. 1, and the Special Town Meeting would take place, probably at the Collins Center, on Monday, Nov. 8.

A Special Town Meeting costs the town about $5,000 to orchestrate.

Halloween

Selectmen also scheduled a discussion on when trick-or-treating will be allowed in town for their Oct. 4 meeting. Chairman Downs said the police will be consulted on whether to celebrate on Sunday night, Oct. 31, or to move the trick-or-treating to Saturday night.

DCS class openings

The Department of Community Services' class registrations two weeks ago were very successful, according to Mr. Torrisi, but several classes still have openings. Interested residents should call DCS at town offices for more information.

Joseph Bevilacqua, president of the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce, gave board members copies of the Chamber's new Merrimack Valley Economic Development Brochure.

The brochure was funded by the state Executive Office of Economic Affairs and with donations from local businesses. It was designed by Lapham/Miller Associates of Andover and features Andover, North Andover, Methuen and Lawrence. The brochure is intended to foster economic growth by getting businesses to invest in this area.

The brochure is full of color photos highlighting the area's businesses, educational facilities and recreational opportunities. Genetics Institute, Hewlett Packard, Raytheon and Gillette are among Andover companies mentioned in the brochure. A

Rates drop for many cable TV

Robert Carr Jr., president of TCI Cablevision of Andover, the company that bought the former Heritage Cablevision and now provides the town's cable service, discussed changes in cable service with selectmen Monday night.

Mr. Carr said recent regulatory changes did not have a big effect on Andover's cable TV rates or services and that the cost for basic service went up a few cents, the costs for those with multiple outlets went down a few dollars.

As of Sept. 1, the cost of basic service dropped from $10 to $9.38, and expanded basic went down from $10.35 to $8.98. A new 16-cents remote-control rental fee, a $2.16 converter rental fee and an 11-cents franchise fee, now broken out separately from the basic fees, countered those changes to leave a net 44 cent increase. So a customer with one television and those two services who was paying $20.35 before Sept. 1, is now paying $20.79.

That's the worst effect the new regulatory changes had on Andover cable service, according to Mr. Carr.

Customers with additional outlets made out because the regulations banned charges for additional outlets. So customers paying $6.95 for an extra cable hookup in a children's room or bedroom are now paying that much less.

Premium and package premium prices remained the same.

Selectman Jim Barenboim had questions regarding his own cable bill. He has three cable outlets in his house. "In closing, my bill is $9 less than it used to be," Mr. Barenboim said.

Installation and repair

Most costs for installation and repairs went up with the new cable regulations. The installation and repair rates were derived by using an hourly rate figured according to a formula set by the Federal Communications Commission. That rate is $46.92 for Andover.

The rate changes are as follows: Installations went up $10.38, from $60 to $70.38; restart/reconnect home installation, from $25 to $35.19; additional connection at time of installation, no charge to $11.73; additional connection requiring separate installation, $19.95 to $35.19; move outlet, $19.95 to $35.19; upgrade or downgrade of optional services, $10 to $2; connect VCR at time of installation, no charge to $11.73; connect VCR requiring separate installation, $10 to $23.46; connect FM at time of initial installation, no charge to $11.73; purchase A/B switch, $10 to $5; install A/B switch at time of initial installation, no charge to $7.82; install A/B switch requiring separate installation, $10 to $23.46; administrative fee for delinquent payment remained 5 percent; non-sufficient funds charge, remained $10; unreturned converter charge, from $250 to $150; unreturned remote control, $14 to $10.

Letter to cable commission

Chairman Bill Downs signed a letter being sent to the state cable commission asking that it go ahead and regulate basic service and equipment rates on the town's behalf, but reserving the right to rescind that request in the future, "as may be appropriate."

At its last meeting, the board discussed the Federal Communication Commission's determination last May that the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission should be the "franchising authority" for the purposes of rate regulation in the state. The town's position is that state law provides for city managers, mayors and boards of selectmen to be the local issuing authorities, and that the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992 vests the rate setting authority with the municipal franchising authorities.

Members of the Andover Cable Advisory Committee unanimously endorsed the letter last Thursday.

The Learning Channel

Selectman Gerald Silverman made a pitch for having The Learning Channel added to the menu of channels available.

Crystal Raadmae, 11, of 95A N. Main St. told the Townsmen and the Cable Advisory Committee last week that she would like to have The Learning Channel available. She said it is educational for little kids, big kids and adults. Mr. Carr said that if enough people ask for it, TCI would consider it.

New business: Dawg City

By Don Staruk

Dawg City, a combination pet supply store and dog grooming and training shop, opened at 38 Pearson St. last Saturday. The space was occupied formerly by The Gray Goose art supply store and is above Depot House of Pizza.

The store's grand opening is this coming Saturday, Oct. 2, 10 a.m.-9 p.m., and again the following Saturday, Oct. 9. Door prizes include 8-pound bags of dog food and a three-hour limousine ride. "We have a lot of free stuff to give away," said Jayne Madden of Methuen, the store's owner.

Dawg City carries supplies for cats, birds, fish, rabbits, hamsters and guinea pigs, and even ferret food, but it specializes in dog supplies, grooming and training.

While Dawg City carries the usual brands of dog foods, such as Iams, Science Diet and Pro Plan, it specializes in all-natural foods such as Triumph and Neura. Ms. Madden said her dog food prices are low because she'd rather sell in quantity and get people in the shop to buy other items and services.

"The pet food is just like a steal here," Ms. Madden said.

She only makes about $1.50 per bag rather than $4 like most places charge. "The reason I'm not rich is I'm too honest," Ms. Madden said.

She also sells dog vitamins and dietary foods for reducing diets. And the store has a variety of specialty items. "I make all-natural dog cookies. These are fruit flavored,"

Ms. Madden said.

There are also "Happy Hoover" all-natural cow hooves that come stuffed, smoked or regular, and natural "beef biscuits."

She doesn't like to sell rawhide bones, but does because people ask for them, Ms. Madden said. But the rawhide can tear off and get caught in the dog's throat where it swells up and chokes the animal, she said. She'll gladly recommend alternatives.

Chips, her own golden retriever/collie mix breed, favors a rubber squeeze toy in the shape of a bare human foot.

Dawg City has kennel cabs for carrying pets while traveling, and enclosed pens for dogs to stay in while being trained or so the dog is not running free in the house while the owner is out. Grooming tools are also for sale, such as combs and shedding brushes and sweaters.

"The secret to our success is low prices, helpfulness, honesty and compassion and love for animals," Ms. Madden said. Grooming

Dawg City has a full-time dog groomer, Tracy Thomas, certified at Essex Agricultural College's grooming school, and a groomer trainee.

Ms. Thomas stressed that the shop uses only safe products for the dogs.

"We are not doing flea dips because they are harmful to the dogs, and a lot of people don't realize that," she said.

The dip chemicals work by getting into the dog's blood stream and when the flea bites them, the fleas die. Those chemicals can't be good for either the dog or the groomer, Ms. Thomas said. "We use just natural

Nursing home makes $1,000 donation to ABC

Andover Committee for a Better Chance, ABC, recently received a $1,000 pledge from the Academy Manor Nursing Home at 89 Morton St.

The funds will be used to help renovate the 25-year-old kitchens in the ABC dormitory at 134 Main St. The Stevens Foundation in North Andover has agreed to match this pledge and several other pledges from businesses and institutions in the area.

Andover ABC is the Merrimack Valley's open door to opportunity for minority students with great academic and leadership potential from educationally disadvantaged schools.

While attending Andover High School, 11 young women from urban areas come to live in the white frame dormitory on Main Street with the non-paid resident directors and two tutors.

They participate fully in the curriculum at the high school for four years to prepare for success at competitive colleges and, later, for positions of leadership.

Since the program's founding more than 25 years ago, almost 100 graduates of Andover Committee for a Better Chance have been accepted at America's top colleges and universities.

Chamber's business expo is already a success

The Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce, serving the communities of Andover, Lawrence, Methuen and North Andover, welcomes the public to experience and celebrate "Business in the Valley" at the annual trade show, "Business Network '93," to be held Thursday, Oct. 7.

The show is a day-long event being held at the Andover Marriott with doors opening at 10 a.m. There will be plenty of free parking and free admission.

"Excitement for this event is really building," said Wil Carpenter, manager of marketing and member services for the chamber. "We've had a sell-out situation now for several weeks and we have completely maxed out every inch of space at the Marriott with a total of 95 exhibits."

Mr. Carpenter said that there will be "something for everyone" at this expo: a variety of product displays, special demonstrations, including "the Convincer" car-crash simulator, a giant hot air balloon, antique auto show, new car show and the all-new electric car. The show will also feature food and beverage samples, promotional offerings, raffles throughout the day and a free drawing for different door prizes, including a round-trip ticket to Rome.

There will be a "kick-off banquet" the evening before the business show, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Marriott. Guest speakers will include Gloria Larson, secretary of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Economic Affairs; Dr. Roberto Falaschi, consul general of Italy to New England; Priscilla Miller of the office of Nova Scotia in New England; and Joseph Pellegrino, director of the Boston office for Small Business Administration.

Banquet seats are $35. The public is invited. To make reservations or for further information on the business show or the kick-off banquet, call the chamber at 686-0900.

United Way sets goal of $5.4 M

The United Way of Merrimack Valley has announced a $5.4 million fund-raising goal.

More than 600 people attended a recent kickoff cookout on the grounds of AT&T in North Andover. Campaign Chairman Cosmo R. Camelio, senior vice president for Fruedenberg Nonwovens in Lowell, announced the goal during the festivities. Mr. Camelio said he and the campaign team will work extremely hard to achieve what is a 3.6 percent increase above the previous year's total.

"I'm very excited about this year's campaign," he said, "excited about the many talented volunteers who will make it happen, excited about their can-do attitude, and excited about the potential this valley has to help its residents."

Mr. Camelio told the crowd that it's time to stop talking about the problems of reaching the campaign goal and start talking about the solutions.

"We've all heard about the 'sluggish economy' and 'challenging economic times,'" he said. "We know how difficult it is to raise money in times like this. But we also know it can be done. That's our underlying theme this year - just go out and do it. Start removing the barriers to success and achieve our goal."

Mr. Camelio said he was encouraged by the recently completed Pacesetter campaigns. These early campaigns finished with a 27 percent increase over dollars raised in the same companies the previous year.

Loaned executives

In addition to the hundreds of volunteers involved in the campaign each year, the United Way of Merrimack Valley also has seven "loaned" executives. The full-time campaign workers on loan from supporting companies for 12 weeks include: Dolores Conlon from Lawrence; Richard T. Crovo, engineer with New England Telephone; Myles A. Kelly from North Andover; Al Kountze from Andover; Maureen McCarthy, vice president of consumer lending at Lawrence Savings Bank; David Robinson, engineer with New England Telephone; and James Vanderpol from Plaistow, N.H.

Raytheon Company and Fruedenberg Nonwovens are also sponsors for the Loaned Executive Program.

United Way of Merrimack Valley President Kenneth A. Gallant said the campaign will focus on three areas: increased volunteer participation, the loaned executives and leadership giving.

"Increased volunteers means we can tap more businesses," he said. "There are quite a number of small businesses that we've not been able to contact because we simply didn't have enough people. The Merroh Awake Society, our leadership giving program, which recognizes people who give $1,000 or more annually, is another growth area. And of course, the loaned executives are invaluable."

59 member agencies

Money raised during the annual campaign is used to help fund 59 member agencies addressing health and human service needs. Last year, United Way of Merrimack Valley member agencies served more than 291,000 people.

In a continuing effort to keep fund-raising costs to less than 10 cents on the dollar, the kickoff luncheon was sponsored by 23 local businesses.

The United Way of Merrimack Valley serves 34 communities in northeastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Hearing Health

Q: I am constantly changing the volume of my hearing aid. Is there a better instrument for me?

A: People who wear traditional hearing aids often set the volume control for soft situations and turn the aid down for louder sounds. This constant adjustment can be very annoying to the user.

One of the best ways to amplify the softer sounds without becoming overpowered by louder sounds is to incorporate a compression circuit into the hearing aid. Compression circuits control the loudness while also reducing distortion. There are now sophisticated compression circuits that have become available just in the last few years that also provide improved clarity in noisy backgrounds.

To find out if standard compression circuits would be useful for you, or to request a no obligation demonstration of the new sophisticated circuits, give us a call at 508 / 475-9595.

flea shampoo," she said.

As long as she is not too busy, Ms. Thomas will accept walk-in groomings.

Training

Though she holds no licenses or training certificates, Ms. Madden has been training dogs for five years as J.M.'s K-Nine College, and gets referrals from at least one local veterinarian.

Customers are apt to be greeted at the store by Brandi, Ms. Madden's 5-year-old daughter who is "vice-president" of the store, according to her mother, or Chips.

Chips chewed, dug, cowered, quivered and ran away every chance he had when Ms. Madden and her husband, Bryan, first took him from a shelter two years ago.

"Nobody would have kept him," she said.

She trained him and now he literally climbs ladders, jumps through hoops and holds things and has been on TV doing those tricks. He has also entertained groups of children. He is incredibly friendly and responds to commands including "down/stay," to which he will respond by lying down quietly for an hour while his owners can have company. He weighed 50 pounds "soaking wet," and now weighs 83.

Ms. Madden said she opened the shop to help dogs like Chips. "If I can save one dog a week from going to the shelter for behavior problems, it will be worth it," she said.

She charges $17 an hour for training and said most dogs need about 12 hours of training, after which they will not have behavior problems and will obey commands.

"I'd say 90 percent will do it," she said.

The store is open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m., and Sundays, 11 a.m.-6 p.m.

Dog training will be three or four evenings a week, 6-9. Parking is available in a small lot in front of the store on Pearson Street.

News deadline at the Townsmen is Monday at 5.

THE REAL ESTATE CORNER

with Jean Fitzgerald & Pamela Lebowitz

DRY OUT THAT BASEMENT

If you are a typical househunter, you are likely to eliminate a prospective home, even one you really like, if the basement has water stains on the walls or floors and smells like mildew. Before you do, however, you might want to get an expert's opinion to determine if the water problems can be solved.

Often a basement can be dried out fairly easily. Maybe a new set of gutters, repairs to a plugged up outdoor drain, or simple regrading of soil around the foundation will solve the problem. A professional home inspector can give you an idea of how much you will have to pay to waterproof. If the house is priced at top dollar, you might consider negotiating with the sellers, asking them to share in repair costs, especially if your alternative is to make no offer at all. If, on the other hand, the house is a "fixer upper" and priced accordingly, you could get an excellent value that more timid buyers passed up.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, talk to the experts at Century 21 Carriage House. Come by our office at 10 High Street, or give us a call at 475-1243.

SCHOOLS

Jeff Kearns of Andover, the community's 1993 Read-a-thon reading program champ, is shown here at a celebration party and awards dinner in the Diamond Room at Fenway Park this summer. Jeff is seated next to WBZ-TV Channel 4's Suzanne Bates. Behind them are Dee Brown of the Boston Celtics, Cam Neely of the Boston Bruins and WCVB-TV Channel 5's Dick Albert, the celebrity chairpersons for the program. All of the children honored at the party had each raised $500 or more to fight Multiple Sclerosis through pledges for each book they read.

Other competing schools include Reading; Beverly; Methuen; Malden; Triton Regional High School in Byfield; Dover, N.H.; Westbrook, Maine; and Cranston East, R.I. The marching band from Boston University will end the show.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students/seniors. Tickets can be purchased at the gate. Refreshments and souvenirs will be sold. The proceeds will be used to offset the cost of transportation, instrument repairs, uniforms and music.

Odyssey of the Mind sign-up is at Sanborn School next week

Odyssey of the Mind, a problem-solvers group, will hold a sign-up for Sanborn School students Thursday, Oct. 7, at 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria.

Children and parents will hear a brief presentation and can sign up that evening. Parents are encouraged to volunteer to coach a group.

Odyssey of the Mind is in its third year at Sanborn. The national organization was developed to enhance children's thinking skills. Children will be grouped by age and faced with one main problem to solve during the year. Games and brain-teasers are presented to them throughout the year. The groups are coached by parents, whose main functions are to present the problems and help the children acquire the materials they might need. The children must come up with solutions on their own. Several challenges from years past have been: to build a vehicle that moves; to construct a balsa-wood structure that can withstand large amounts of weight placed on top of it; to create a monument; and to construct two dinosaurs. The problem-solving is usually illustrated with a skit written, directed and acted by the students.

Groups may choose to participate in a regional competition in the spring.

Looking for an adult-ed course in the area? It's probably in this booklet

State Sen. John D. O'Brien, D-Andover, has joined with the Higher Education Information Center to inform the citizens of the Second Essex and Middlesex District that the 1993-'94 edition of the Educational Opportunities of Greater Boston for Adults has recently been published. This directory lists more than 8,000 continuing- and adult education courses offered by Boston and local area schools and organizations.

The booklet outlines educational opportunities available in the Greater Boston area, as well as in 80 cities and town throughout Massachusetts. The publication also includes information about which schools give credit for life experiences, where people can earn college degrees on a part-time basis and what type of financial aid is available.

The directory is available for $15.95 plus a $2 shipping and handling charge from the Education Resource Institute, 330 Stuart St., Suite 500, Boston, Mass. 02166, Attn: Educational Opportunities.

For more information, call 1-800-255-8374, Ext. 240.

Those who have specific questions regarding a list of courses and schools should contact the Higher Educational Information Center, publisher of the directory, at the Boston Public Library. The number for the center is 1-800-442-1171.

South School PTO hosts lecturer Norm Bossio, 150 parents at meeting

By Christine McCarthy

The South School PTO treated more than 150 parents attending the first meeting of this school year Tuesday, Sept. 21, to a look at the perils of raising children. Norm Bossio, a popular lecturer with 23 years experience in education, called his presentation "Parent-Child Relationships and Self-Esteem."

Unlike the dry theory or self-help instructions a person might find in a bookstore under that title, Mr. Bossio's performance revealed amusing anecdotes from his history as teacher, principal, superintendent of schools and parent, then drew out universal lessons on parenting and, generally, living with others. He shared the humor and irony of parenthood in a performance reminiscent of a stand-up comedian. Many parents laughed so hard that they were forced to search for handkerchiefs. Yet each story led in a completely non-judgmental manner to a specific point about our relationships with our children and how to improve them.

Mr. Bossio said, "Good parents don't relax. Good parents worry." Right away we knew how well he understood. His performance, lasting approximately 1½ hours, covered diverse topics including the importance of expectations, control versus guidance, the need for unconditional support, communicating with kids who won't talk, and the importance of a sense of humor. "If you don't laugh every day, you will die earlier... and take other people with you."

He held up a mirror and let the parents view their flaws and foibles in the warm glow of acceptance and laughter while providing some helpful lessons for the hard work of parenting.

The South School PTO will host other education- and parenting-related presentations throughout the 1993-'94 school year.

The deadline for school news & information for the next issue is 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1.

SCHOOLTALK

All 38 fifth-graders from Pike School spent five days at Sargent Camp Environmental Center in Peterborough, N.H. The Sargent trip has been part of the Pike fifth-grade program for 20 years, a spokesperson said.

Learning activities for the week are coordinated by the Sargent staff with Carol Lindsay, head of Pike's middle school, and Diana Corey, Pike's middle school science teacher. Students and faculty live in cabins and share the experience of group living while pursuing an educational program that builds on what youngsters have learned in science and geography classes. The scientific observations they record in journals provide the basis for classroom reports.

"After children return from Sargent Camp, they show a new awareness of their environment and one another," reported Mrs. Lindsay.

Faculty members Diana Corey, Gail DerAnanian, Ken Herz, Carol Lindsay, Chris Lynch, Alison McKerlich and Shelley O'Brien and teacher intern Cindy Carboneau accompanied the students.

All of the YMCA's fall classes are underway. Openings are available in preschool swimming and movement/gymnastics class, parent/child gym classes, tap and ballet lessons for preschoolers, sports classes for preschool and youth, Red Cross lifesaving, adult fitness classes for beginners, STEP, special needs, cross-training and strength fitness as well as many adult special interest courses. For specific information about any course, stop by the Y at 165 Haverhill St. for a program brochure.

Officials from the American Institute for Creative Education in Augusta, Maine, announced that they will offer a one-day educator seminar in Andover next Thursday, Oct. 7. This program is entitled "Science Through Children's Literature" (preschool to grade 6).

"Science Through Children's Literature" will use topics that children often explore on their own to teach basic concepts in science, math, reading, writing, listening and critical thinking skills. "If teachers are wondering how to strengthen their science curriculum or are looking to expand their child-directed science lessons," organizers say, "this workshop will give them specific activities and literature references for lessons about schoolyard exploration, geology, water, ponds and oceans."

Mary Cerullo, author of several publications for children, including two books by Penguin, USA, will be the seminar leader.

Preregistration is required. For brochure and registration information, contact the American Institute for Creative Education, 23 University Drive, Augusta, Maine 04330, or call 1-800-448-5343.

Andover storyteller Susan Lenoe will perform Saturday, Oct. 2, at the ninth annual Three Apples Storytelling Festival.

West Fest planners take plunge

Several students and teachers met recently at West Middle School to discuss plans for West Fest's most popular and profitable booth, the dunk tank. Last year, teachers were the first to take the plunge, soon followed by students rushing to don wet suits for a good cause.

West Fest will take place this weekend, Oct. 1-3, at the West Middle School parking lot.

It will feature rides, arcades, carnival food, candy and a dunk tank. After a brief opening performance by the WMS singers Friday, Oct. 1, the carnival will open its doors at 2 p.m. for the exclusive use of WMS students for one hour.

West Fest then opens to the public at 3 p.m. until 11; Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m.

Marine biologist visits Sanborn

"I have only one rule: please touch everything!"

The kindergarten and first-grade students at Sanborn School were happy to follow this rule when they were visited last Thursday, Sept. 23, by a traveling marine biologist and her living and formerly-living sea life. Ellen Goethel, a marine biologist from Hampton, N.H., spent the day sharing her knowledge, enthusiasm and respect for the creatures from the waters of the North Atlantic.

She had two tables covered with sea life set up outdoors, plus a water table filled with salt water for the creatures that were still alive. She gave brief discussions of various animals, including a large sea star (starfish), an exotic sun star from deep in the ocean, a squid and a horseshoe crab.

The children were fascinated by her description of the way a sea star shoots its stomach out of its mouth in order to eat and that the stomach remains outside of the body until the food has been digested.

The children were taught the proper way to handle the sometimes-delicate creatures and were encouraged to touch and examine everything. They were cautioned to be careful when touching the teeth inside the jaws of a shark and were shown one vertebra of a whale, which was as big around as the waists of many of the children.

Ms. Goethel receives many of her specimens from deep-sea fishermen who make their living off the coast of New Hampshire.

Peabody Museum's new exhibit is on the importance of repatriation

An new exhibit titled "Voices on Repatriation" has opened at the Robert S. Peabody Museum of Archaeology at Phillips Academy. The museum, on the corner of Main (Route 28) and Phillips streets, is open to the public without charge Tuesday through Friday, noon to 5 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Under the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA), which became law in November 1990, any museum receiving federal funds is required to repatriate four types of objects to appropriate Native claimants: human remains, funerary accompaniments, sacred objects and objects of cultural patrimony. The exhibit presents a summary of the law, the museum's policy on repatriation and comments by Native Americans and others on the effects and importance of this process.

The "voices" represented in the exhibit include The Rev. Katrina Byers, a Protestant minister from Rhode Island; Rosemary Cambrano, from the Muwekma Ohlone tribe in California; Cjegkitoonuppa (Slow Turtle), a Mashpee Wampanoag who is director of the Massachusetts Commission on Indian Affairs; and Michael Gibbons, a physical anthropologist from the University of Massachusetts Boston.

To comply with NAGPRA, the Peabody Museum must survey all of the objects in its collections that fall into the designated categories (perhaps as many as 100,000 objects from more than 200 locations across the country), and through notification and consultation with Native people, determine the relationship between the makers of these objects and present-day descendants. There are 514 federally-recognized tribes with standing under the law.

Continuing until Dec. 30 is "10,000 Years in Tewksbury: Archaeological Investigations of the Heath Brook Site, Tewksbury, Massachusetts," an exhibition illustrating changing techniques and processes of archaeology. Both amateur and professional archaeologists gathered information at the site for more than 60 years. As analytical techniques became more sophisticated, modern archaeologists were able to determine that the site had been occupied by Native American people intermittently over a period of nearly 10,000 years, through dramatic changes in sea level, climate and forest cover. The most extensive occupation occurred during the Middle Archaic period, 6,000 to 8,000 years ago. A time-line in the exhibition shows these events.

Happy First Birthday, Andrew

Happy first birthday, Andrew James Templeton, who celebrated his first birthday Sept. 28. He and his parents, Jim and Jennifer Templeton, live on Cottage Road.

Symphony bus rolls again to BSO starting tomorrow

The Andover Symphony bus will begin operation tomorrow, Friday, Oct. 1, taking concert-goers from the Greater Lawrence area into Boston for the Friday afternoon concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, as it has done for 23 years.

The bus is sponsored by members of the Boston Symphony Association of Volunteers and leaves the corner of Phillips and Main streets at 10 a.m. on Fridays when a concert is scheduled. Stops in Boston are made at Arlington and Boylston Corner, Copley Place, Prudential Center, Symphony Hall and the Museum of Fine Arts. This year the concerts begin at 1:30 p.m., which will allow the audience to leave the hall a half hour earlier than last year or about 3:30 p.m. The bus leaves from Symphony Hall about 10 minutes later and comes directly to Andover.

Tickets to the concert are not provided by the volunteers, but can usually be purchased before the concert at Symphony Hall or by calling the box office.

Information about the bus may be obtained from Mrs. Hart Leavitt or Mrs. Alexander Warren of Andover or Mrs. Robert Hyde of North Andover.

HAPPY FIRST BIRTHDAY feature changes its publishing schedule

► Beginning in October, babies celebrating their first birthdays, affiliated with Andover, may have their pictures in the Townsmen free. They will appear in the issue dated the last Thursday of the month, in the month of baby's first birthday. For example, all babies having a birthday in the month of October will be published in the Oct. 28 issue. All photos must be received by 5 p.m. the previous Friday. The Townsmen will continue to publish Births on the first Thursday of the month.

Andover Chinese-Cultural Exchange has free one-woman show at library

The Andover Chinese-Cultural Exchange (AC-CE) will present a free performance of the one-woman show, "Unbinding Our Lives," on Sunday, Oct. 3, at 3 p.m. at Memorial Hall Library.

This play was written by Geralyn Horton and re-enacts the lives of three Chinese-American women and their experiences in the United States at the end of the 19th century. Actress Christina Chan portrays a young girl sold into slavery and sent to San Francisco: A Chinese-American mother who fought for equal and desegregated education for Chinese children in California; and Polly Bemis, forced into prostitution but determined to be a survivor in the American West. The play touches on little known American history and offers an opportunity to learn about the adversity and racism faced by Chinese-American immigrants and women.

Refreshments will be served.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION

While many health care advocates now preach the importance of "preventive medicine," chiropractic has always promoted prevention as a means of averting disease. Chiropractors and their patients know that it is far better to focus on maintaining good health than trying to correct the causative factors of disease. For this reason, many chiropractic patients do not allow themselves to reach the crisis point of disease before enlisting the aid of the chiropractor. Instead, the endeavor to keep their bodies balanced and in good working order as a means of staving off disease. To this end, it helps to engage in sound nutrition practices, strength and flexibility training, and regular adjustment of misalignments in the spine that might otherwise lead to impairment of nerve energy.

We are dedicated to the total health of every member of your family. From infants to seniors, and pregnant women, too, call us for natural and safe care at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

Collins Center lies idle on its 10th

"It's sort of like a double sadness because of the way it is now," said Bea Collins, daughter-in-law to J. Everett Collins, the man for whom the center is named. "You can't stop hoping that one day it might at least be partially used for what it was intended."

"There's nothing sadder than an empty stage," said Robert Lague, music teacher and drama instructor at the high school who directs the school's plays, musicals and is involved in other concerts. "In the arts, it's a tragedy. You have various arts center around, but nothing like the Collins Center."

More than a decade ago, the Collins Center was born out of the idea that Andover High School needed an auditorium. At that time, science teacher Robert King was directing the school plays, which were acted out in the boiler room at the then-West Junior High.

"It was like Hades, there was soot everywhere," he says now. "A member of the School Committee objected to the stipend that was paid to the drama instructor."

He went before the School Committee and told members what he was doing and the conditions under which he was working. Kenneth Seifert, then-superintendent, recommended that Mr. King not only defend his small stipend, but also make the big request for a high school auditorium.

"We really made the School Committee cry," said Mr. King. "We were doing a lot without a lot of anything."

The ball for a new auditorium began to roll. Eventually, the Andover Endowment for the Arts jumped in and after some politicking, the Collins Center was built. It was a high school auditorium above all others, and a superlative regional center for artistic expression.

For several years, under the direction of Glen Gulezian, the Collins Center brought in big-name performers and full houses. But as the '80s progressed, the center began to lose money, and when the Andover Endowment for the Arts moved in it was in what Bea Collins referred to as "bad financial straits."

"Those were the '80s, in the boom period," current superintendent Mark McQuillan said of the early success. "It was just a different climate economically."

After struggling to keep the center running via smaller shows, the AEA eventually declared bankruptcy. Control of the center, which is first and foremost a high school auditorium, thus went to the schools and high school Principal Timothy Thomas. After honoring the previous commitments, Mr. Thomas worked out a proposals that could make his role in scheduling outside events for the center minimal. Administrative assistant Cindy Verda is in charge of scheduling and the center is currently under the jurisdiction of the School Committee.

"It's a wonderful theater and lots of people would come to use it," said Dr. McQuillan. "But the reality is it's becoming a high-school facility."

The Collins Center is currently used for town meetings and school productions and functions. Six to eight dance companies rent out the center for $1,750 a day, plus $300-$400 for police and fire, booking the center from April to June, according to Mr. Thomas. The revenue is used to hire part-time staff and to maintain the structure. Hotels in the area have not expressed interest in renting the center for conventions, Dr. McQuillan said.

"We get the use of the stage a lot more but I'd gladly sacrifice that for a full-time staff, the way it used to be," said Mr. Lague. Students interested in technical work had an opportunity to work on shows that no other school did and the drama productions had the benefit of enormous sets, he said. There are no longer any full-time staff members at the Collins Center.

"I think they are extremely fortunate to have someone come in part-time, but how long can that last?" asked Mr. Lague. "It's in good shape. But if you don't have people in on a full-time basis how long can you wait before it needs repairs and starts to fall apart?"

"It makes me a little sad to move the much of the plate" auditorium isn't being used as it was intended," said Mrs. Collins. "I know my father-in-law and I know he was very interested in music and having all kinds of music at the center."

Mrs. Collins was with J. Everett Collins throughout the whole dedication ceremony and first day.

"He asked if I would stay with him all day. He was getting a little frail and he needed someone to lean on," she said. "He was very honored. I think if you asked him he wouldn't have been able to put it into words. But as his family we knew what he felt because we were experiencing it ourselves. It was a very proud moment for the Collins family. (Pops Conductor Harry Ellis) Dickson said it was a great place to play because of the acoustics."

Last year the School Committee tried to get the center up and running through a New Hampshire group headed by Michael Flanagan. But much publicized problems led to the abortment of that partnership, after months of negotiations. Little has changed with respect to the Collins Center since then.

"In a way it's like you built a great stadium but you don't have a great football team," said Mr. King.

"The School Committee has to decide if it's going to resurrect the issue of the Collins Center," and start meetings of a newly formed subcommittee, said Dr. McQuillan. "My take on it is if it were to be formed it would be in the spring. They just have so

A number of groups are willing to expend the energy to get the center running again. However, the School Committee does not have the funds that most groups would find necessary. Mrs. Collins said that volunteers should be utilized to keep costs down. She said when she first came on with the AEA, there were many volunteers who had put their names in when the center had opened and never had been called.

"In order to get it going they are definitely going to have to get volunteers who are willing to work for the love of it," she said. "You need them, particularly when something is starting up, to sustain it."

Yet, even if a group takes over, nearly everyone who has dealt with the Collins Center at one time or another acknowledges that it may never get back to where it was in terms of attracting the big-name stars.

"It's pretty hard to invite a big star who has a big price tag because there's such a small number of seats," said Mrs. Collins. "It might work on a smaller scale. (It won't return to having big-name stars) unless there is a way to raise enough money to have it endowed."

If the School Committee was able to form a subcommittee in the spring, Dr. McQuillan said that it would take at least two years after that to get the center back up to a level approaching what it once was, if that can happen at all.

"I guess I have to say I'm kind of disappointed," said Mrs. Collins, "because it had such great potential."

Tracking, mainstreaming, leveling: Good ideas?

nomic rather than learning-capability factors. The systematic response to tracking, sometimes labeled as cooperative learning, has been criticized by others as not acknowledging the differences of students, nor allowing the brightest to advance at their own pace.

"I don't believe you can have one or the other; I believe you have to have both," said School Committee Chairwoman Susan Dalton. "I think what the better educators are saying is tracking is appropriate and so is inclusion."

Many, however, feel strongly about these issues, and while most educators agree that some level of both tracking and inclusion is proper, there is considerable debate about exactly how much of each is ideal. There are also significant questions about what sort of tracking or inclusion systems should be used.

"We're in the process of sorting through a lot of the research and there is a lot of study left to be done," said Ruby Easton, head of Andover High School's guidance department. "I think the faculty, as much as time allows them, are trying to think this through. You have to go about it carefully and gradually."

"Where the school system is right now is where it should be," said superintendent Mark McQuillan. "I think there has to be discussion. But I think if there are to be any changes they have to be modest."

Leveling or inclusion

William Huston, secretary of the School Committee, went on record at the last committee meeting as saying, "I think tracking is a destructive thing. I barely made it through high school because of tracking." Mr. Huston's first language was sign language and he ultimately graduated magna cum laude from Boston College.

"I am in very strong support of non-leveling," said like-thinking committee member Susan Jenkins. "I know a lot of people who have been mistracked."

Technically, Andover does not have tracking, which according to William Becker, chairman of the English department at the high school, is defined as enrolling a student across the board, regardless of subject matter, in a particular level. What Andover does have is known as leveling, which is a policy of placing students in a particular level for each course. That level may be different in one subject such as science, than it is in another, such as English, recognizing that many students may be more gifted in one area than another. However, even educators often use the terms "tracking" and "leveling" interchangeably, as they will be in this article.

"I really believe in the idea that kids' levels of expectations have to be challenged," said Michael Lynch, head of the AHS science department. "By separation or isolation you are not helping anyone at all."

"I believe in tracking. I don't believe

'We have to educate each student to their maximum potential. We are all setting such high goals we are getting caught in jargonese. Education must be delivered in a patient and deliberate fashion.'

in it in putting down racial minorities. But I don't believe that's even a remote factor in Andover," said Richard Collins, chairman of the social studies department. "Where that does happen, it's dead wrong."

"Tracking is ability grouping. It was designed originally to give the student who has difficulty a chance to get an A. I believe there's (also) a place for honors classes for kids who have outstanding ability and have demonstrated it," added Mr. Collins.

Though no one is accusing the Andover school system of racism being an element in Andover's tracking, economic elements may have effects on the educational achievement and placement of students.

"A student has to have the economic means to have books in the home and to visit museums," said Ms. Easton. "I don't think (teachers) sort them out like that, but it may be a natural progression that by nature (poorer students) require additional academic support."

According to Dr. McQuillan the state Department of Education has also come out with significant literature detailing difficult side effects that tracking or leveling can have on children at the lower end of the spectrum.

"I think that the research points to the fact that there are concerns about self-esteem issues, about being labeled, about constraints on meeting challenges, but again, I think there are just no easy answers," said Ms. Easton.

"I think tracking is appropriate in broad programs," said Mr. Becker. "I wouldn't want to change tracking abruptly. Where it works, continue to use it. Where it looks like it's needed, do it."

Deeper questions

Simply asking whether leveling or inclusion should be used may merely get at one layer of the tracking onion, however. Amongst those who might desire a substantial place for leveling in the Andover schools, for instance, there is debate over exactly who should choose which tracks the students are in.

"Even though teachers can make recommendations, the student doesn't end up in that level," said Mr. Becker. Parents will, in effect, override the decision of the teachers and place their children in what they consider a more appropriate level.

"Andover's a very competitive town," said Mr. Becker.

"It's widespread," Mr. Collins said of parental override. "It's not ability grouping if you're able to choose what group you're in."

"I'm happy with the AP program," Mr. Collins continued. "I think we do a good job there. But levels 2 and 3 are a hodgepodge as people pick and choose. I think that needs some real soul searching."

Administrators, meanwhile, view parental voice as a positive.

"We have a long standing policy of parental waivers. I would always support a parent or student's right to take the most challenging course possible," said Timothy Thomas, AHS principal. "If they are not capable of doing the work then their grade will reflect that or they will go down another level."

Combining or meshing levels

Issues raised by Mr. Muller at the last committee meeting that are almost sure to be discussed again are whether levels were combined in courses to keep class sizes down, and whether this is something that benefits or hinders a student's education and the meaningfulness of grades.

In fact, the effort to keep pupil-teacher ratios down and consistent undoubtedly had a substantial role in the decision for bi-level classes.

Andover High has offered bi-leveled courses for years in American Studies, Humanities, Improving Your Writing, Short Stories and the non-leveled public speaking course. In some cases the courses were made multiple level so that the material could be offered.

"Student-teacher ratio has a lot to do with this bi-level thing," said Mr. Becker. This year 28 level 1 students and 16 level 2 students signed up to take Humanities, according to the chairman. However, rather than have one small and one large class, the two levels were combined to create two classes of 22 students each.

"I wouldn't want to do it with all the classes (and) I certainly am not thrilled with the idea of non-leveling," said Mr. Becker. "I see it in certain areas."

Mr. Becker also likes the broader focus of team-taught courses such as American Studies and Odyssey, which immerse the student in more than one subject area and interrelate the two. "To me that's a really rich experience. That's the way to go," he said. "I think people are very well prepared" (for college).

Ms. Dalton wants to make sure that the students are getting the basics first, to assure proper preparation. "It's like a you-have-to-eat-your-supper-before-you-get-your-dessert type of thing," she said.

In the ninth and tenth grade science classes, which Mr. Muller specifically referred to at the meeting, levels were again meshed, as levels 2 and 3 were combined. This was done for numerous reasons, among them being efforts to keep class sizes down and allow more lab time. Currently, the science labs do not meet state specifications and will not until the science department is able to expand, for instance into the proposed expansion to the high school. The state requires the labs to be 1,000-1,200 feet and the current labs are in the 800-900 range.

Other issues involved may be whether it was done because some teachers do not like to teach a straight level 3 class, whether the modified grading, which must go on, harms grade integrity, and whether level 2 students are held back by the other members.

"If you give a kid a chance to do some critical thinking they are going to do it," said Mr. Lynch. "The old problem was to just dump discipline problems into a level 3 class. The legitimate level 3 student was being short changed because of the behavior child."

In terms of grading, both levels of students do the same work. However, tests are supposed to count more in a level 2's tabulation, while a level 3's grade is based slightly more on homework.

"Everyone wants their child to be exposed as much as possible," he said. Level 3s "are wanting to be part of the class."

Ms. Dalton has concerns about meshing, saying there is potential for the lower-level student to be left behind, for the middle student to either be too greatly challenged or not challenged enough, and for the brighter student's progress to be slowed.

"If meshing is meant to present this bootstrapping (pulling up) of a lower student, I'm not sure I want to do it this way," she said.

Ms. Dalton said she is also concerned about complaints from colleges saying high school students are generally not ready to go, particularly in English, once they arrive on campus. "That still appears to be the case. Are we sending them out the door at 55 or at 45 or 35 (mph)? I remain unconvinced that we are not doing what the colleges are accusing us of."

As is well documented, Andover has always ranked high in Massachusetts in terms of student achievement. Last year 90 percent of graduating seniors continued their education with 80 percent going to four-year colleges. SAT scores here are at their highest level in about two decades. Yet, schools in Andover have always been a topic of great importance to the populace and any change can stir up lively debate. Certainly, there will be considerable debate Oct. 5 and beyond.

"We have to educate each student to their maximum potential," said Ms. Dalton. "We are all setting such high goals we are getting caught in jargonese. Education must be delivered in a patient and deliberate fashion."

EDITORIALS

Writing for the love of it

If you keep a journal or have ever attempted to maintain one, you know it's difficult to sustain the necessary discipline to write one.

But journals - like most forms of writing - often are a good way of working out problems. They also are a way of playing with words and thoughts.

Andover author John Gould, whose story begins on page 1, worked through some difficult family problems by turning the true story of his son's bout with anorexia nervosa into a book. It is a story with which many puzzled and frightened parents will be able to identify.

And it is a story that the Gould family had to agonize over to come up with the right decisions. John Gould called the book a healing process.

Of course those of us who write for a living agree: Writing, like reading, is something we almost have to do, kind of like breathing. Most of us who write had someone important in our lives who by example taught us the importance of the written word. In our households, books, newspapers and periodicals were very much in evidence. Reading and writing were priorities.

Learning to care about words and their derivation and use, and learning to use writing as an effective tool of communication is an important goal for parents, and one of the most important goals of our schools.

When installed in October of 1987, it was received with mixed reviews. Mr. Burbank, an artist and sculptor who lives in Newburyport, has been chairman of the fine arts department at Merrimack College for 29 years. Currently he has an exhibit at the Howard Yezerski Gallery at 11 Newbury St. in Boston, through Oct. 5. Tuesday, Mr. Raymond said the piece in the above photo was his first public work. These are the reactions of a random student and of Principal Dorothy Partridge to the most visible of the changes that seven weeks of hard work have wrought at the East Junior High — wall-to-wall carpeting through the west wing corridors, flanked by new wall covering in blending greens and blues. As a result an almost startling quiet has replaced the clatter of feet on wooden floors squeaky from 50 years of service in this oldest wing of the East Junior High school. A fire watch maintained for over 33 years formally ended Monday night when Deputy Fire Chief Charles H. Murnane was honored by his colleagues and friends at a banquet at Briarcliff.

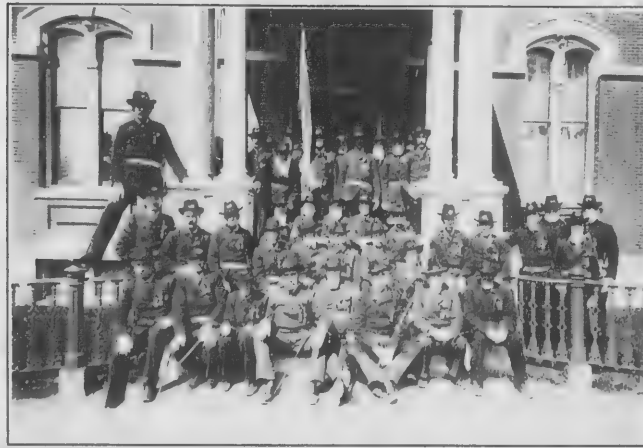

Andover voters will be casting ballots in an unusual primary election Tuesday. All six precincts will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. as the town, for the first time, will nominate state representatives to serve particular areas of the town.

Andover Savings Bank is planning to add a third floor to their new Main Street building.

The Andover schools saw "a reasonable opening" last Monday, the school superintendent said Tuesday night — and if it is not exactly flourishing, "all in all the Andover school system is alive and well." Superintendent Kenneth Seifert told the School Committee the schools opened Sept. 12 with "a couple of glitches" and a couple of serious questions about transportation and class sizes.

Abstinence is the best program for students

Editor, Townsmen:

Last Monday evening the School Committee hosted a forum at which the results of the "Youth Risk Behavior Survey" (given to 495 Andover High School students) were announced.

About 60 people attended, a surprisingly low number considering the serious nature of the discussion: sex, AIDS and possible condom distribution at Andover High School.

The discussion centered around the question of whether condom distribution at the high school would reduce the risk of HIV/AIDS for our children. The survey of 495 students indicated the 30 (or 50) percent of the students have been sexually active, but of the remaining students who have not yet had sex, 20 percent said they'd be more likely to try it if condoms were available at school. So we can expect a significant increase in sexual activity just due to the condom presence at the school.

Interesting to note here is a well-known study by the Guttmacher Institute (research arm of Planned Parenthood) in which they found that, contrary to expectations, the increase of condom availability to teens in a given area actually resulted in an increase of unwanted pregnancies. We cannot ignore the high failure rate of condoms in a teen population. There are differing figures, but it's at least 15 percent failure rate.

The idea of offering a faulty device such as a condom to our children as a "safe" measure against the AIDS virus, in my opinion, is clearly wrong. Our children deserve better.

Most of the parents at the meeting spoke out against condom distribution, citing many good reasons. Many suggested that Andover High adapt an abstinence-based program, of which several have been developed in the country already. I think that an abstinence program would best reflect the desire of most parents for their high-schoolers and I hope that the school department will consider one of these and see that the message is vastly superior to that of handing out condoms.

The School Committee, to make these important decisions, needs input from the parents of those children in the high school. For the next forum, the School Committee should have notices sent home from school to help increase parental awareness of this very important topic.

Senior citizens: Please listen to our side of the story hang up on us. Reporter Neil Fater "signed" his story so you would know to whom you should complain, if you wish. And my name (and face) are always published in the paper. I "sign" my work.

I want to talk with you. Many times I will agree with you. Sometimes I might disagree. But if we know who each other are, then we will have a fair beginning.

In addition, I hesitate to defend the newspaper when there is controversy about a story because I want you, our readers, to be able to have your say, your opinion, without us, the newspaper, always coming back with the last word. But you haven't given us a name or face to respond to.

In addition, we would like to set the record straight here: The Townsmen, of course, has nothing against senior citizens. In fact, many of our friends are seniors. Our parents are seniors. And, some of us here are soon-to-be senior citizens.

Now to the story. Our reporter, Neil Fater, was assigned the story: Report on the survey that the Andover Council on Aging sent to 3,012 seniors and 346 seniors completed.

While studying the survey, he noted some questions were strongly worded to elicit a "yes" answer. He noted some unfair conclusions. He noted some inconsistencies in the tabulated answers and the conclusions to the survey. He brought those observations to me. I agreed with his assessments. So those observations were part of the story, as well it should be. We would not insult anyone, especially seniors, by sugar-coating a story.

He did not say local seniors do not want a new senior center. He did not say anything negative about the senior citizen population. He did not mean to twist any remark made by Sharon Souza, executive director of the Council on Aging who runs the Senior Center.

I will tell you that both Neil Fater and I wish that either he or I had taken out one phrase in the story: "In a later, interestingly-worded question, 102 of 146 respondents answered yes, that they 'would like to see a newly constructed Senior Center which would better accommodate the many growing number of services provided by the Council on Aging.'"

We should have omitted "interestingly-worded." That is editorializing in the story. We were hitting our readers over the head so they would notice what we noticed by that question in the survey: There is no way a person would answer no, he or she wouldn't like to see a senior center that would better accommodate the growing number of services. In that case, we made the mistake of telling our readers instead of showing them.

So I hope that sets the record straight. We don't disagree with some of the conclusions to the survey. We don't think all of the survey questions were impartial. We do think there are some questions about the seniors' needs in a center here. And we would like to talk with those of you who would like to tell the community, through the Townsmen, what your needs are.

(P.S. We would like to tell you that one person phoned us to say seniors don't need a new center, that all the space of the center isn't used at all times. We are looking into that. We also talked with a person who thinks there are ways to meet the needs of the seniors that don't necessarily mean we have to build a new center.

Let's talk. But let's talk with letters that are signed with names, and phone calls in which people identify themselves.

AHS golfers remain only undefeated team in MVC

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High golf team entered this first of two extremely busy weeks as the only undefeated squad left in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

The MVC Small School Division and overall league leaders whitewashed winless Wilmington High 9-0 in recent play at Hillview Country Club in North Reading, improving to 4-0-0 in the MVC and 5-0-0 overall.

Rain, cold weather and over-booked golf courses caused the postponement and reshuffling of several other matches, putting the Golden Warriors in the unenviable position of having to play eight matches in the next two weeks.

Coach Bob Lawson's linksters were scheduled to play Lowell, Haverhill, Chelmsford, and Dracut this week.

"We've played very well so far and we've also been fortunate," said Coach Lawson. "There have been a lot of close matches around the league already, with everyone (except Andover) getting knocked off."

"There appears to be parity in the league this year, which is good, and that means it should be a dogfight (for the championship).

"The weather has not been especially conducive to golf, forcing all those schedule changes, and it will be tough playing back-to-back four-match weeks."

"Central Catholic (5-1), Haverhill (3-2), Chelmsford (3-1), Methuen (2-1) and Billerica (2-2) all look like excellent teams."

Andover 9
Wilmington 0

Sophomore Co-Capt. Dave Shaffer once again paced Andover in its romp over Wilmington, earning medalist honors with a 39 while defeating Wildcats' number one player and team medalist Kevin Camell who fired a 41.

Also picking up individual head-to-head wins for the Golden Warriors were sophomore No. 2 Jeff Mazza, freshman No. 3 Pat Annese, junior No. 4 C.J. Dadd, junior No. 5 Nate Roberts and senior No. 6 Brian Hussey.

Annese carded a 40 which included back-to-back birdies, while Mazza shot 43 and Roberts also had 43 while playing Hillview for the first time.

The shutout was the powerful Golden Warriors third in five matches.

Cross country:

Girls beat Lawrence; Boys swept in tri-meet

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls cross country team opened its Merrimack Valley Conference season with an 18-48 dual meet romp over host Lawrence High, while the AHS boys were swept in a tri-meet against Central Catholic and Lawrence.

The Central boys trimmed the locals, 24-35, while the Lancers were 27-32 victors.

Both teams returned to league activity yesterday at Chelmsford.

Andover girls

Junior Captain Amanda Verault won the race over the 2.4 mile Lawrence course, finishing in 16:57 to beat teammate and senior Captain Melanie McGarry (17:06) by nine seconds.

Freshman Melissa Ying was third for the Lady Warriors in 17:33, senior Captain Amanda Grasso fifth, junior Kelly Cronin seventh, sophomore Ellen Buckley ninth and sophomore Colleen Sheehy 11th.

"Melissa Ying's performance was very encouraging," said Coach Leo Lafond. "She's a definite prospect."

Andover boys

The Golden Warriors were hurt by the absence of sophomore Charlie Russo, who is expected to be their No. 2 man this fall, in the double dip to the city schools.

Russo, who should be back either this week or next, twisted a knee when he slipped while running to catch a bus on a rainy day.

"We knew Lawrence would be stronger this season after seeing them at the Wilmington Invitational," said Coach Lafond. "They have a lot of new, young runners and I anticipated a close meet."

Senior Captains Max Dawson and Kevin Sharkey ran strong races for Andover, Dawson finishing second to Central's Ryan Fortune and Sharkey placing fourth over the 2.9 mile Lancers' course. Dawson was clocked in 15:50 and Sharkey in 16:08.

Andover's only other top 10 finisher was sophomore prospect Leo Blais, ninth overall in 16:23 as only 22 seconds separated third and ninth place.

Girls volleyball team posts convincing win over Tewksbury

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls varsity volleyball team breathed a collective sigh of relief earlier this week, after breaking into the win column with a convincing 2-0 romp over Tewksbury.

The Lady Warriors won both games by identical 15-7 scores, dominating the opener from start to finish and battling from behind in the second game.

The early-season losing streak had reached five consecutive matches when both Chelmsford and Haverhill registered 2-0 sweeps.

The statistics through the first five matches, prior to Tewksbury and yesterday's match against winless Wilmington (0-6), graphically explained why the Lady Warriors have struggled.

All the key percentages are much lower than in previous years.

Successful hits were 75 percent, with only four kills (three by Carrie Green) prior to Tewksbury, while successful serves were 82 percent with no aces.

"Our serve-reception is only 68 percent," lamented Coach George Sullivan, "and that's particularly frustrating because we work on it all the time."

"The girls were despondent after the losses to Lawrence and Chelmsford. Both of them blew us out of the water. Against Lawrence (15-8, 15-4) 20 of our 47 passes were bad, seven of our 13 hits were bad. Lawrence's serves were hard and sharp. They out-toughed us. Chelmsford was more of the same, although a lot of our problems have been as much psychological as physical."

"The girls played very hard against Haverhill, and the win over Tewksbury naturally gave everyone a lift," said Coach Sullivan.

Haverhill 2
Andover 0

The Hillies, 3-2, were pushed hard by Andover, battling in both games before registering a 15-11, 15-12 triumph.

"This match was a different story (from Chelmsford and Lawrence)," said Sullivan. "We had a good shot at winning both games. Haverhill is a scrappy team and went out fast in the first game, but both games eventually settled into a back-and-forth scoring pattern."

"They were doing a lot of 'tipping' with (6'2" basketball star) Amy Veilleux, but we communicated well and played with more consistency and confidence."

"We went to a different alignment several matches ago to find more balance," explained the coach. "We switched from a simple 4-2 setup to a 5-1, and now we're sticking with a 6-2 because it allows all six players to be hitters."

"We put (team captain) Carrie Green, our best athlete, as a setter with Annmarie Hussey. That enables us to use our bigger kids for blocking at the net, and it also settled our hitters down."

"We're starting two girls (sophomore Andrea Marvin and freshman Susan Tully) who never played a minute of varsity volleyball before this year. They're doing fine, but having Carrie and Annmarie as setters provides us with more court direction."

The effects were immediate because Andover only had seven bad passes the entire match against Haverhill, and there were only 10 errors among the 35 hits.

Cited for fine play against the Hillies were Carrie Green (setting and passing), junior Rebecca Goldenberg (all-around), junior Kim Daher (hitting) and sophomore Cara Rossini.

"Goldenberg has shown poise and leadership in every match, and her passing has been outstanding," said Coach Sullivan.

Andover 2
Tewksbury 0

Captain Carrie Green was the prime mover in this first victory with eight hits, three kills (to double her season output), excellent setting, accurate passing, and strong defense.

"We didn't work as hard or play as well as we had against Haverhill," admitted Coach Sullivan. "We were far superior to Tewks-bury, but we got sloppy at the end of the first game and the first half of the second game."

Everything came easily in the opener. The Lady Warriors' serving, hitting and

SPORTSTALK

Scott Petersen, 13-year-old son of Rick and Merry Petersen of 6 Livingston Circle, has completed a successful season with the AAU Junior Olympics, New England Mariners baseball team. The team of All-Stars from the New England area competed in more than 40 regular season games against teams from Maine to New Jersey. The Mariners defeated the South Shore Athletics to win the New England regional tournament and a bid to the AAU Nationals in Oklahoma City. The nationals hosted 24 teams the week of Aug. 17. The New England Mariners defeated the reigning national champion from Cincinnati 2-0. This is the first time a 13-year-old team from New England has ever won the AAU Junior Olympics gold medal in baseball.

Scott was also a member of the Expos that defeated the Padres to win the Andover town championship in the Junior League. He also played on the Andover Blue baseball team that finished second to Methuen in the Suburban Pony League.

Brad Cronin is a junior defender on the Barry University men's soccer team. The Andover High School graduate has played and started in four games and has blocked two shots and had one assist. Barry University, in Miami Shores, Fla., is currently 1-2-1 overall.

PA TIDBITS

Phillips Academy hosted Loomis Chaffee in boys and girls soccer in their season openers. The girls defeated Loomis, last year's prep school championship team, 3-0. Captain Becky Dowling blasted a shot over the head of the Loomis keeper from far outside the 18-yard box for the 1-0 lead. She then rocketed another ball from 20 yards out into the corner of the goal. Junior Jill Cassie put the finishing touches on the game with a beautifully crossed ball that eluded the keeper. Newcomer Jeanne Ficociello, senior Nicole Berg and Emily Kalkstein were successful in the backfield in shutting down a fast Loomis attack. Paige Heller played well in goal, making 13 saves. Honor MacNaughton of Andover will co-captain the team with Dowling and Nicole Rhodes.

The boys' varsity team lost 2-0. Keeper Ethan Bing held off the Loomis attack in the second half but the Big Blue could not convert on the offensive end. Bing finished the game with 13 saves. Team standout Joey McCannon suffered a shoulder injury during the game. Mike Sullivan of Andover will captain the varsity soccer team.

The Andover football team lost their season-opener with Taft by a score of 16-14. Despite a solid game by quarterback Mike Siciliano (16-25, 222 yards and two touchdowns) and a superb performance by post-graduate Brendan Kennedy (237 all purpose yards), the Big Blue could not recover from a 16-6 deficit at the half. Captain Todd Harris of Andover had a good outing with 67 yards receiving.

The boys' water polo team lost to Choate Academy 9-8 and defeated Suffield 14-4. Captain Omar Farah looks impressive early in the season in goal. The boys' team has a record of 3-2 with the second loss to Phillips Exeter last week, in overtime.

Perpetual offensive woes leave field hockey team at 0-5-0

By Rick Harrison

Strong defense but no snipers on offense continued to be the early-season story for the Andover High varsity field hockey team.

The Lady Warriors scored their first goal of the campaign against Lawrence High under the lights at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but the Lancers snapped a 1-1 halftime tie with a pair of second-half goals in a 3-1 Merrimack Valley Conference victory.

Andover then played Haverhill to a virtual standstill before the Hillies pushed in the only goal of the game with less than four minutes to play.

A 1-0 non-league loss to North Andover on Saturday perpetuated the offensive woes, leaving AHS at 0-5-0 entering Tuesday's makeup of a Monday rainout against Tewksbury.

Coach Sandy Lunt's squad was scheduled to host unbeaten Merrimack Valley Conference leader Chelmsford yesterday, the Lions 5-0-0 with a 14-1 scoring edge on the opposition entering this week.

Tomorrow they travel to Tyngsboro to face the perennial league and State Tournament challengers, 4-0-1 with a 16-1 scoring advantage after five games.

The second half of the campaign begins next Wednesday when Methuen comes to town.

"We're still looking with optimism at the season," said Coach Lunt. "We've been in several outstanding games, all close, but we just haven't been able to get the offense started."

Lawrence 3
Andover 1

The Lady Warriors jumped ahead 1-0 early in the game when junior forward Christine Durant scored from a rush in front of the net.

The assist went to senior forward and Captain Andrea Minichiello.

But the Lancers defense shut Andover down the rest of the way, while the Lawrence offense controlled large chunks of the action and scored three goals.

The winners' markswomen, with one goal apiece, were Sharon Sirois, Michelle Cherabie and Andrea Solomon. Netminder Wendy Crocker made seven saves.

AHS senior goaltender Tanielle Smith made 11 saves, while other standouts were sophomore midfielder Stacy Kangisser and Minichiello.

Haverhill 1

The locals came within less than four minutes of collecting their first point of the season, but Hillies' forward Shawna Murphy connected after a series of penalty corners.

Playing strong defensive games for Andover were senior Jaime Heller, senior Sarah Goldin and senior midfielder Colleen Sherry.

in net and made nine saves, while junior Kathleen Harris worked the second half and had six stops.

Lori Boddy earned the assist for Haverhill and goalkeeper Kim Stacy had three saves.

Andover JVs

The AHS junior varsity split a pair of 1-0 decisions, beating Lawrence and bowing to Haverhill.

Missy Dearborn netted the goal and Kara Stamm assisted against the Lancers. Kim Smith and Jamie Green combined for the shutout.

Midfielders Meghan Pouley and Amy Toohig were standouts in the Haverhill game.

Boys soccer 'Couldn't cash in on the opportunities'

By Rick Harrison

Someone turned off the power.

The Andover High boys varsity soccer team, perhaps fatigued from pumping in 12 goals in Merrimack Valley Conference victories over Chelmsford and Methuen, mysteriously managed only one in their next two games against Dracut (1-1 tie) and Haverhill (1-0 loss).

Coach Dave Amundsen was at a loss to explain the sudden reversal.

"You got me," he said with a verbal shrug. "I'm sure a bit of complacency set in, and our kids just assumed the goals were going to keep coming."

"We didn't play very well against Dracut, but the Haverhill game was a case of us working very hard and coming up empty."

"We had the ball in their end the entire first half, and outshot them 20-7 for the game, but couldn't cash in on the opportunities," admitted the AHS coach.

Andover (2-1 overall) was scheduled to host a winless Central Catholic squad, which had been outscored 15-1 in its first four games, earlier this week.

A potentially brutal four-game stretch begins tomorrow afternoon (3:30 p.m.) at Small School Division leader Wilmington, which entered the week 4-0-0 with an 11-2 scoring edge on the opposition.

Next Tuesday night (7 p.m.) the locals battle defending Large School champ Lowell, currently 5-0-0, while Thursday night perennial Small School champ Tewksbury (3-0-1) comes to Lovely Field (7 p.m.) and on Saturday, Oct. 9 the Golden Warriors are at Billerica (3-1-0) for a 10 a.m. game.

Dracut 1

The Middies broke a scoreless tie midway through the second half, and 10 minutes later AHS senior Captain Quang Nguyen tied it on an indirect kick.

Nguyen's fourth goal of the season came when he poked the ball through a maze of bodies during a scramble in front.

Both teams finished with seven shots, and Warriors' junior netminder Dave Charland made six saves while playing the entire game.

Senior defender Rob Weisman was injured when he collided with a Middies' player, the pair bumping heads. He did not play in the following game versus Haverhill.

Standout performances were contributed by versatile senior Lyle Morgan, junior defender Eric Piskic and Adam McHale.

Haverhill 1
Andover 0

The Hillies beat Andover for the first time in a long time.

Brian Dupes netted the only goal in the second half, converting a throw-in from Chris Peltz.

"Their goalie (Ross Marino) made a couple very good saves on low shots," said Coach Amundsen, "but for the most part we fired the ball right into his stomach."

Senior Chris Sintros went the route in net and was the tough-luck loser, making seven saves, while once again Lyle Morgan and Eric Piskic played well.

Swimmers sink Lowell and Notre Dame

By Rick Harrison

Andover High girls swim Coach Marilyn Fitzgerald already considers the 1993 season a program-elevating success.

"I said before our first meet if we could beat Lowell and Notre Dame, both of whom had defeated Andover the past three years, it would be a total turnaround for the program."

The Lady Warriors shocked favored Lowell 95-91 in their season opener, and then improved to 2-0-0 in the Merrimack Valley Conference with a 113-73 rout of NDA.

"I really wanted to focus on the Notre Dame meet because they beat us by one point (92-91) last year," explained Coach Fitzgerald. "I went over that meet a thousand times wondering where I could have made a change that would have given us the win."

"I just didn't want the same thing to happen again."

With Diana Liberty, Tracie Grant and Mindy Fox capturing two first places each, the visiting Lancers never had a chance.

"Once again the girls were really pumped up and spirited. There were balloons all around the pool area, signs and lots of noise once the meet started," noted

Freshman football team opens season with victory

By Rick Harrison

Tailback Matt Trede escaped on a spectacular 65 yard touchdown run on the second play from scrimmage, and the Andover High freshman football team made it stand up the rest of the way for a season-opening 6-0 Merrimack Valley Conference victory over visiting Lowell at Lovely Field.

Both teams threatened several times after that, but the rival defenses hung tough.

"Lowell had 74 kids dressed, and a few of their linemen weighed in the 230 pound range," said Andover Coach Ken Pellerin. "They controlled the ball most of the game. We only ran 25 plays."

Following the Golden Warriors' touchdown and subsequent kickoff, Andover held Lowell deep in its own territory and forced a punt from the seven yard line.

Jack Glazebrook returned the kick 15 yards, and the locals advanced inside the Red Raiders' 10 yard line before turning the ball over on a fumble.

The half ended with AHS on the move again, a 20-yard pass from quarterback Glazebrook to halfback Marc Tropeano bringing the ball inside the Lowell 20 before time ran out.

The Red Raiders mounted two serious bids in the second half. They were forced to surrender on downs at the Andover five, and the Golden Warriors' defense held again inside the 10 after Lowell regained possession two plays later on another fumble.

Leading the defensive charge were interior linemen Josh Murphy and Ryan Daniels, end Craig Hartwell, noseguard Tom DiLiegro, middle linebacker Jeremy Schofield, outside linebacker Trede and cornerback Glazebrook.

The two teams did not play last fall, when the Andover frosh finished 4-3-1 and Lowell was undefeated at 8-0-1. This loss snapped a carryover 11-game unbeaten streak for Lowell.

Ironically, both teams were missing outstanding quarterbacks.

Joe Michaud became the first freshman in Lowell High history to start at QB for the varsity, leading Lowell to a 21-7 victory over Andover, while Golden Warriors' ninth grader Brian Tisbert is with the varsity as the number one placekicker and a backup signal-caller.

defense were sharp as they jumped ahead 13-2.

Tewksbury (0-6) then rallied to score five straight points, closing to 13-7, before Andover finished the home team off.

The Redgals jumped to a 7-2 lead in the second game, at which time AHS regained its composure and reeled off 13 straight points to clinch the match.

Junior Kim Daher was lauded for her serving, Rebecca Goldenberg for defense, and Cara Rossini for passing and serving.

"Cara scored the last 10 service points in the second game," noted Coach Sullivan. "She wasn't trying to smash the ball 90 miles an hour. She was steady, accurate and did a good job searching out Tewksbury's weaknesses and exploiting them."

Schedule

After the breather against Tewksbury and Wilmington, it's back to nasty business tomorrow night at Dracut (6:30 p.m. JV start).

The Middies are struggling this season, 4-3 after seven matches, but are always dangerous with 11 MVC Small School titles in 12 years and a State championship.

Next week will not be a walk in the park, either, with matches at Billerica (Monday), home against Lowell (Wednesday) and at vastly-improved Methuen (Friday). All three entered this week with winning records.

Andover JVs

The AHS junior varsity improved to 5-1, sandwiching 2-0 sweeps over Lawrence, Haverhill and Tewksbury around a 2-0 loss to undefeated Chelmsford.

Playing well for Coach Art Iworsley's squad are sophomores Gina Seibert, Alyson Shea, Allyson Ahern, Cindy Su (setting) and Katie Jurdi (setting).

Monday's romp over Tewksbury came by 15-3, 15-4 scores.

Gridders may struggle

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High football team will not go undefeated this year.

In fact, the Golden Warriors realistically may struggle to keep their heads above the .500 mark.

Last weekend at Cawley Stadium in Lowell a 5'8", 125-pound freshman quarterback led the host Red Raiders to a hard-fought 21-7 triumph over the Golden Warriors.

Joe Michaud hit seven of 11 passes for more than 100 yards and two touchdowns, as Lowell improved to 2-1-0 and squared Andover's record

AHS football team drops games to Lowell; team may struggle this year at 1-1-0 in the first game between the two schools since 1990.

"We scrapped pretty well," said AHS Head Coach Dick Collins. "We stayed in the game and played them tough until the last period. But we made a million mistakes, and we have to live with that."

The Golden Warriors opened the season with a 17-7 victory over Lawrence two weeks earlier, and then had a week off before facing Lowell.

The early-season bye turned out to be a mixed blessing.

"The layoff hurt our timing and execution," noted Coach Collins. "We went into the Lowell game having played just one scrimmage and one game."

"Normally, at this stage of the season (third week), we've already had three scrimmages and two games. Instead of five competitions, however, we only had two."

"A rained-out scrimmage, the open date and one less week of pre-season practice all combined to take their toll on us."

"The other side of the coin," continued Collins, "is if we played the previous week we would have been missing several key people. The bye gave us a chance to get everyone healthy."

Injuries and illness

"During the first three weeks we never had a practice with the full team, and that showed big time against Lowell."

Several days prior to last weekend's game AHS lost sophomore 5'11", 220-pound starting offensive tackle Chris Dunn, who came down with mononucleosis.

"We converted Sam McLellan from end to tackle," explained Collins. "I believe he's going to be a good interior lineman. Sam didn't do badly considering he only had two days practice at that position."

Dave Jorgenson, a senior two-way back who scored the lone touchdown against Lowell on a 22-yard pass from quarterback Jeff Brammer, missed the opener against Lawrence with a shoulder injury.

"Jorgenson is a terrific football player and he's really going to help our cause this season," said Coach Collins. "The Lowell game was the first time he had the pads on and was ready to go."

"He only ran at practice, and didn't get a chance to try on his (shoulder) brace for the first time until the morning (Friday) of the game."

"Dave has no place to go but up from here," added Collins.

Lowell strikes first

Lowell took a 6-0 first-quarter lead when freshman quarterback Michaud, who watched the first two games from the sidelines, hit Greg Kouloheras with a swing pass which the veteran running back turned into a 44-yard touchdown play.

"We came out like gangbusters in the second half," noted Collins, "and I thought we had it (the win) for awhile."

The touchdown pass from Brammer to Jorgenson tied the game before Andover's freshman prospect, Brian Tisbert, booted the go-ahead conversion for a 7-6 Golden Warriors' advantage.

Brammer, who completed seven of 14 passes (two interceptions) for 91 yards, did most of his aerial damage on this drive. He also hit senior Captains Paul Allard (21 yards) and Toby Guzowski (26 yards) prior to the touchdown strike.

The Red Raiders, under first-year Head Coach Dennis Scannell, came right back to regain the lead on a Brian Cote one-yard TD plunge.

Michaud and James Haley hooked up on a 56-yard pass-and-run touchdown play to add some fourth-quarter insurance, and James Bailey nailed Brammer in the endzone for a safety late in the contest to conclude the scoring.

"We knew Lowell was a good football team," said Collins. "We anticipated they might throw the ball more than they had the first two games. I wasn't aware the kid (Michaud) was a freshman, however."

"Their game against Billerica was even except for (Billerica QB Mike) Mastrullo. The way we saw that game was Lowell 7, Billerica 7, Mastrullo 20."

Guzowski shines

In addition to Jorgenson, Collins cited the play of Guzowski and sophomore defensive end-fullback Dana McCann against Lowell.

"Toby is as good an all-around football player as we've had in a long time," said Collins. "He's a tremendous defensive player, a solid running back and he's also caught nine passes (five for 48 yards versus Lowell) in two games."

"Dana McCann is much improved and had an outstanding game defensively against Lowell."

The Red Raiders finished with statistical edges in first downs (12-6) yards rushing (89-33), yards passing (139-91) and total yards from scrimmage (228-124).

Tewksbury

Andover should be involved in another tossup Saturday afternoon at Tewksbury, the kickoff scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the Center School Doucette Field.

The Redmen are 1-2-0, having beaten Lawrence 33-15 and suffered lopsided defeats against Methuen (30-7) and Central Catholic 42-14 last week.

The Central game was 14-14 at halftime before CCHS blew it open with 28 straight points.

Tewksbury's main weapon is veteran senior quarterback Chris Snow, who threw for 177 yards and two touchdowns in the first half against Central.

"We have a definite shot if we play well," said Coach Collins.

The Golden Warriors return home on Friday night, Oct. 8, to host Methuen at Lovely Field (7 p.m.).

the coach.

It hardly seemed to matter that Andover had suffered a tough 95-91 non-league loss to Reading High earlier in the week.

"The girls were disappointed but they took the loss in stride and bounced right back," said Coach Fitzgerald. "It was important but it wasn't a league meet. They're showing a lot of maturity and tremendous team chemistry this year."

The Lady Warriors, 2-1 overall, returned to the water today (Thursday) with a tough assignment as they battled unbeaten Haverhill, which knocked off perennial title contender Chelmsford (also 95-91) in their showdown last week.

Next Tuesday (Oct. 5) Andover comes home to the Greater Lawrence Regional Vo-Tech pool to host Westford Academy (3:30 p.m.).

Girls soccer Crucial showdowns begin tonight

By Rick Harrison

The first of several crucial showdowns for the Andover High girls varsity soccer team occurs tonight (Thursday), when the Lady Warriors continue their seemingly-endless road trip by traveling to Lowell for a 7 p.m. under-the-lights contest at Cawley Stadium against the Red Raiders and sharp-shooter Kerry Conlin.

Lowell, which along with every other Merrimack Valley Conference team except Billerica has never beaten Andover, entered the week atop the league standings at 3-0-0.

LHS was 4-1-0 overall in its first five games, including a 3-0 non-league loss to Pentucket Regional, and senior striker Conlin had scored 10 goals while the defense had registered three shutouts.

Andover got some momentum going with a 2-1 non-league triumph over Peabody and a 7-0 stroll past weak MVC sister Dracut, but just when things got rolling a one-week break in the schedule popped up.

Tonight's game will be the first for Andover, 3-1-0 overall, since last Friday.

Saturday morning the Lady Warriors are at Wilmington (1-1-2) for a 10 a.m. contest, and next Monday marks the sixth road game at winless Tewksbury (3:30 p.m.).

The makeup of an earlier rainout against archrival Billerica at the Indians' field has been tentatively re-scheduled for Monday, Nov. 1.

"I like our aggressiveness, especially considering we haven't had much time on the field," said Coach Dick Loschi. "The girls still have a way to go with the basic skills, but they're starting to put the whole concept together.

"If we can emerge from this extended road situation OK we should do well again this season."

Coach Karl Lippmann's JV crew was 2-2-0 after its first four games, the victories over Methuen and Peabody.

Andover 2
Peabody 1

Sophomore Sue Cookson's goal, on a direct kick at 26:48 of the first half, gave the Lady Warriors a lead they never relinquished against

"Missy took one dribble and chipped the shot over the goalie's head," noted Loschi.

Tracey McKeen made it interesting with Peabody's lone goal midway through the second half, but sophomore goaltender Meghan Lynch slammed the door the rest of the way.

Lynch finished with six saves, Tanners' keeper Teresa Hernandez had three stops, and defensive standouts for AHS were senior midfielders Alison Georgian, Angie Roux and Robin Lapointe.

Sophomore defender Christine Contos made the defensive play-of-the-game on a Peabody shot that skipped behind goalie Lynch and bounced across in front of the open net.

"Christine ran 12 or 14 yards, cleared the ball and saved the day," noted Coach Loschi.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

Pursuant to M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 14(a) and the Massachusetts Contingency Plan (310 CMR 40.00), the Department of Environmental Protection announces that a Preliminary Assessment and/or Limited Site Investigation has been performed at the following location: #3-0209, RAYTHEON MISSILE SYSTEMS, 350 LOWELL STREET, ANDOVER, MA.

This investigation has confirmed that a release of oil and/or hazardous materials has occurred at this location. Therefore, the Department has identified it as a confirmed disposal site. The Department has also determined that this site is a non-priority disposal site (as defined by M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 2). M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 3A (1) (3) requires that, if feasible, permanent solutions be implemented at disposal sites. If a permanent solution is not feasible, then a temporary solution must be implemented, and a plan for achieving a permanent solution must be developed.

This site has also been granted a Waiver of Approvals by DEP. Waiver sites are non-priority disposal sites which have been granted a Waiver of Approvals by the Department, pursuant to 310 CMR 40.537. This waiver allows the person granted it to conduct remedial response actions at the disposal site without prior Department approval of these actions.

This plan will be revised based on comments received, and will be implemented over the course of the response action (310 CMR 40.203).

For information on how to make an appointment to review the files and obtain more information on the confirmed disposal site referenced above, and the opportunities for public involvement during its remediation, please contact Karen Stromberg, DEP Northeast Regional Office, Site Assessment and Cleanup Section, 10 Commerce Way, Woburn, MA 01801 (Telephone: 617/935-2160).

Selectmen avoid action on 2 licenses

David Kiu, of Somerville, and the Grill space was leased to Richard Pruneau, a former Andover resident looking to open an "upscale sports bar" in the space.

But Mr. Anderson bought the bar's liquor license for $1,400 at the same auction and the ABCC, which can only issue one license to an address, returned the license to the town with the stipulation that it can only be issued to Mr. Anderson. Mr. Anderson wants to open a bar somewhere else in town, but hasn't been able to find a location. Until he does, he can't change the address on the license and Mr. Pruneau can't apply for a liquor license in that location.

Because the Board of Selectmen is the town's license issuing authority, Mr. Pruneau had asked members to intercede and either revoke the license or otherwise help resolve the problem.

But Monday night Mr. Manzi said that the two parties had worked out a compromise and that, if the bankruptcy trustee for the former Grill estate can work out the details, the license would be transferred to Mr. Pruneau.

Mr. Manzi said Mr. Anderson is going ahead with the compromise with the understanding that he will be able to apply for another liquor license when he finds a location for his planned establishment. The town does have more liquor licenses available.

Mr. Pruneau said two weeks ago he was two or three weeks away from being ready to open the new Park Street bar. After Monday's meeting he said renovations are 90 percent complete and that he would open "as soon as possible."

Mr. Manzi said that one of the places Mr. Anderson was considering opening a new bar was in the building John's Deli is located in at 5 Andover St. But that building's owners, Roger and Bea Collins, told the Townsmen Tuesday they have only talked by telephone with each Mr. Manzi and Mr. Anderson, and that an alcohol establishment was never mentioned. The Collins said they would not want a bar in that building, and would not want their tenants or neighbors to think that's what they had in mind for the one vacant space there.

"We're not looking, probably will not accept, a sports bar in our building," Mr. Collins said.

Mr. Manzi said Monday night that Mr. Anderson is also looking into leasing the former Buchika's Ski Shop behind Justin's restaurant on Park Street.

Driscoll's

David Kelley, accountant for Driscoll's Package Store since 1986, told the board Monday night that he thinks he has resolved a tax problem with the Department of Revenue that caused the ABCC to reject a transfer application for Driscoll's license earlier this year.

Several months ago the board approved the transfer of the liquor license held by Driscoll's Package Store, 5 Bartlet St., to JoDi Enterprises, which is owned by John Rutkowski of 9 Ellsworth Road. JoDi has since been operating the store under the Driscoll's name. But the transfer was never approved by the ABCC because it claimed Driscoll's had an outstanding tax problem with the state Department of Revenue.

Randy Hanson, town clerk, asked selectmen to review the situation in an effort to move things along on the transfer application.

Mr. Kelly told the board two weeks ago that he had not been able to get the ABCC or the DOR to tell him specifically the nature of the tax problem. The board gave Mr. Kelly until this week to get some answers.

Monday night Mr. Kelly told the board meal taxes for 1985-1987 had not been filed and that was the cause of the problem. He said he had to submit an affidavit to the DOR to show that Driscoll's was not subject to a meals tax, and that was being taken care of, and that he foresaw no further problems.

Ms. Hanson said she resubmitted the transfer application to the ABCC and that, unless too much time had expired from the time of the initial application, she expected it would be approved.

The board opted to take no action.

Town plans flu clinic for Oct. 28

The Andover Board of Health will sponsor a free flu vaccination clinic Thursday, Oct. 28, at Doherty Middle School from 3:30 to 6 p.m. for Andover seniors and persons with certain chronic conditions or diseases. No appointment is necessary for the flu shot. The Board of Health will also offer bacterial pneumonia immunization at the clinic.

Influenza, or flu, can cause serious and debilitating illnesses, especially for seniors and those with chronic illnesses, according to the town health department. An estimated 50,000 elderly die and 200,000 are hospitalized each year because of the flu. Because the vaccine is made from killed viruses, it cannot cause the flu, nor can someone who has been vaccinated infect anyone else. Different strains of the virus appear each year, which means that those who wish to be protected must receive annual vaccinations. This year's flu shot provides protection against the Beijing Type A strain.

There is a fee of $5 for the pneumonia vaccine which is reimbursable by Medicare if the senior client has Medicare B. The pneumonia vaccination is given once in a lifetime. It is recommended for adults 65 years and older. For more information about the flu vaccination or to make an appointment for the pneumonia shot, call the Health Department at 470-3800, Ext. 255.

Backstreet and Cactus Jack's aim to please

Although the weather has become cooler, the news regarding Backstreet and Cactus Jack's still remains hot. Continuing to provide exquisitely prepared continental and American cuisine, lighter-fare family menus and the best Mexican/Southwestern cuisine north of the Rio Grande, Backstreet and Cactus Jack's are ever looking to improve their service to the customer.

Have a party at home

For a number of years Backstreet has been catering parties ranging from picnic lunches to formal dinners. The services provided have included personalized menus such as lobster clam bakes, prime rib, Thanksgiving dinners and Christmas specialties.

Cactus Jack's made its debut in the catering business by doing dinner parties, Christmas office parties and cocktail parties for 300. Some customers have chosen to leave all the details to the restaurant whereupon the restaurant has provided items such as linens, dinnerware, glasses, music, flowers and the excellent staff to make the function a success. The host and/or hostess can truly sit back and enjoy their party.

Other customers have preferred to serve the food themselves and have requested that it be set up at a specified time and someone to return and clean up. Whatever your preference, Backstreet and Cactus Jack's are Now for your convenience both restaurants will deliver to your home or business. Call in your lunch order early in the day and you can expect it delivered at the specified time. Or after a busy day, you can pick up the phone, put in your order, sit back, relax and wait for Backstreet or Cactus Jack's to do the rest.

What could be more appropriate than a traditional Thanksgiving feast in a 300-year-old setting, bright with pumpkins and fall decorations?

At Christmas time, the whole restaurant is set aglow with the holiday magic of old New England, making an evening at the Kingston 1686 House, on Main Street in Kingston, N.H., one of the special events of the season.

Tips to enjoy dining out with kids

- Make special accommodations for toddlers, who are naturally fidgety and have short attention spans. Bring a toy, coloring book and crayons to keep the child amused.
- Parents with infants should bring bibs and extra bottles of formula.

Overreacting to a child's bad behavior at a restaurant is confusing, even unfair, when the same behavior is acceptable at home. Encourage good manners and eating habits in general, but dining out is an excellent time to reinforce them.

• Keep in mind that children are a part of the dinner party and as such, should be included in the conversation. It's a good time to talk with kids.

Ye Loft and Ladle is growing again

The Adie family is happy to announce the addition of the Down Under sports bar in the lower level of Ye Loft and Ladle Restaurant, 337 Essex St., Lawrence.

This new expansion will accommodate the sports-minded patron who is looking for Sunday- and Monday-night football on a large screen TV, darts and pool tables. The sports bar features live entertainment Wednesday through Saturday evenings.

Down Under offers the largest selection of domestic and imported beer from around the world, frozen drinks and a sub menu with Ye Loft and Ladle's famous sandwiches and appetizers.

Ye Loft and Ladle will continue to serve its famous home-cooked dinners in the main dining room, complemented by Boston's best jazz musicians and local favorite, Vallario, pianist extraordinaire.

Use of herbs and spices is on the increase

A recent National Restaurant Association study suggests that in response to a marked change in the American palate, restaurateurs are using a wider variety of herbs and spices and are promoting this development heavily on their menus.

The association's 1992 Menu Analysis, which compares the content of 63 menus in use in 1987 with current menus from the same 63 establishments, found that the number of herbs and spices identified in menu descriptions has increased 50 percent.

Not only has the variety of seasonings used by chefs clearly increased over the past five years, but more menus are incorporating them into the names and descriptions of dishes. In 1992, more than 77 percent of the menus analyzed by the National Restaurant Association identified at least one spice in their entree descriptions, up from 68 percent in 1987.

The Best of Thymes distinguishes itself with new breakfast menu

In keeping with its ongoing goal of finding new ways to meet the needs of Andover residents, The Best of Thymes is introducing an innovative new breakfast menu.

"There are so many places in Andover now that serve bagels and muffins, we wanted to find a way to distinguish ourselves from the other food businesses in town," say owners Marsha Cohen and Janice Fontanella. "Before we started the business, we used to go out for breakfast as a special treat after the kids left for school, and there were very few places in town that offered something really special. So, we've designed our breakfast menu to fill that need."

The Best of Thymes' success is largely due to its unique lunch selection. They feature many sandwich and salad combinations that most people would not think of, but everybody loves. They've carried this concept over into breakfast, putting together some of the best vegetables, meats and cheeses to create omelets with wonderful flavors, fruits and grains to make heavenly Belgian Waffles or, for a low-fat breakfast, granola and yogurt. To accompany breakfast, there are croissants, muffins and bagels with a variety of cream cheeses or toasted fresh baked Sourdough and multi-grain bread. Boyajian's perfect smoked salmon is also featured. Of course, they'll continue to make their

Studying the word 'tips'

The word "tips" is said to have originated from the first letters of the phrase "to insure prompt service." Since most tipping is done after the service has been performed, it would appear to reward rather than to ensure good service.

But why should tipping be a prerequisite for being served promptly and courteously? Frankly, some don't think that it is.

Rather, they believe the custom must have originated as a sort of status symbol on the part of the served to demonstrate their ability to pay for special treatment.

For many years, waitresses, waiters, bellboys and other service employees in many large hotels, restaurants and clubs not only worked for tips alone, but actually paid for the privilege of working.

With the advent of the minimum wage laws, this custom was abolished.

"We're doing so well with lunch and catering. It's time to try something new, and we'd like to see more people in the cafe in the morning. Breakfast will be served on real china with real cups or mugs, and coffee refills are on the house. If people are going to relax and enjoy a nice breakfast, it should be elegant and we don't
